"I want to watch porn with him"

Q I know my man likes porn, and I enjoy it as well. How do I get him to invite me to watch it with him as part of our foreplay?

A Watching porn with a partner can give new meaning to the word "action"! Since you already know that your man is into it, simply suggesting that you view a dirty movie together in bed is sure to score two big thumbs up.

Next time you're at the video store, grab his hand and pull him over to the "Adults Only" section. Take your time to browse the shelves till you find a flick you can both agree on. Besides getting some erotic entertainment for the night, you can tap into your guy's secret desires and fantasies by checking out which movies he chooses. If you'd rather be more discreet and do your porn perusing in private, you can always order online. A couple of good sites to try: Toys in Babeland at babeland.com and Sineplex Entertainment at sineplex.com. Or you can contact your local cable TV company to find out what adult entertainment channels they offer on pay-per-view.

Another way to clue him in to your salacious cinematic leanings? Spring a sexy surprise on him. Invite him over for a private screening at your place -- just don't tell him he'll be attending an XXX premiere. Before he arrives, set the stage by lighting some candles and leaving lube, condoms and any other amorous accoutrements within easy reach. When he arrives, dim the lights, get him cozy on the couch and hit "play." Take your carnal cues from the movie and mimic the moves that turn you both on. Chances are, you'll both be so distracted, you won't find out -- or care -- how the movie ends.
